“This is a road worn, dirty blues band that’s been honed to super tight perfection by sheer hard work and volume of shows.”

Island born Robert J. Hunter combines his gruff and powerful voice with the wild thud of overdriven blues guitar.

His powerful debut album, 'Songs for the Weary', received blues chart success and critical acclaim and the single release, 'Demons', reached number one in the UK iTunes Blues Chart.

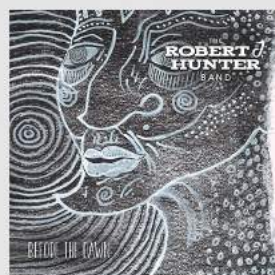

'Before the Dawn' followed late 2015 showing that Robert had matured and developed as a singer, songwriter and instrumentalist.

His new album, time a solo release, demonstrates not only the versatility of Robert's musical ability but also the diversity in his songwriting. 'Where I'm From', released December 2016 through independent label, Spiritual Records.

In 2017 Robert was a finalist in the International Songwriting Competition (ISC) with his powerful ballad, 'Preacher' which was chosen from 16,000 entries.

Robert has previously supported acts including Wilko Johnson, The Animals and HeyMoonShaker. He has played top venues around the country including Ronnie Scotts Jazz Club and the Spiritual Bar in London. He is a regular performer at the London blues jams and clubs as well as performing in Europe and on the UK circuit.

Robert J. Hunter deserves to be heard and his energetic live show is not to be missed.
